RATIONALE

Association for Family and Society Scientists is a multi-disciplinary body that brings together professionals from different fields of study such as, sciences, humanities, arts, engineering, education etc. The association aims to provide a veritable platform for a robust scientific and/or intellectual conference and workshop, promotion of effective research collaboration, and publication of quality empirical studies in reputable research journals.

The theme of the conference “Ethics and Values in Contemporary Society: Human Inclusiveness vs Inclusivity” is intended to elucidate various mechanisms by which the family, and society at large uphold moral standards as well as contribute to its deterioration while interacting with individuals, groups and the society. Ethical conduct and value system has never been more important than now; not only in the academia, business and public health sectors, but also in politics, legal system, and society at large. Any society that upholds ethics and values experiences greater human civility and general wellbeing; whereas, insecurity, immorality and so on clogs any society that devalue ethical conduct and value system. It is therefore pertinent to address this issue at both family and societal level.
